

1201 CONNECTICUT AVENUE, NW
Suite 500
WASHINGTON, DC 20036
Telephone: 202 496 1000
Facsimile: 202 496 1300

FACSIMILIE

Date: September 17, 2010

To: Department of Justice; Registration Unit

Fax: 202 514 2836

From: Qorvis Communications, LLC (202) 496-1000

Page Count: 3– including cover page

Comments: The material I am submitting is from Qorvis Communications, LLC

Registration #5483

The material is being distributed on behalf of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea in Washington, DC

For Immediate Release

Media contact: David Mayorga, +1 703-489-4089

EQUATORIAL GUINEA FOCUSES ON IMPROVEMENTS IN EDUCATION
Ministry Puts New Measures in Place as 2010-2011 School Year Begins

MALABO (September 16, 2010) – In the nation's effort to build a better society through improving the education of its people, Equatorial Guinea's (República de Guinea Ecuatorial) Minister of Education unveiled a new set of standards and requirements for educators for the coming year.

The Minister of Education, Science and Sport, Filiberto Ntutumu Nguema met with principals, teachers and education professionals from schools in Malabo to present the new work plan.

Minister Ntutumu Nguema was joined by Deputy Minister of Education, Secundino Nvono Avomo, Secretary General of the Ministry, Miguel Esono Masogo, and the Counselor to the President for Education, Ondo Esono Asangono Ansclimo, gathered with the directors general of the Ministry of Education, district directors and inspectors, principals, teachers and other professionals in the education sector. The purpose of the meeting was to guide the education sector staff on the new system of work and requirements.

During the meeting, Minister Ntutumu Nguema stressed the importance of education in society. "Thinking about general education," one of the highlighted themes, focused on education as the main road to success and teaching as the best vocation one can have. Minister Ntutumu Nguema cited several factors that affect the quality of education, including: teachers and professors, educational infrastructure, educational tools and adequate school buildings.

The next theme cited, "Planning, educational management and legal tools to regulate the functioning of education" focused on new directives for the schools and encouraged the schools to focus on planning and programming. The application of new rules for the 2010-2011 school year were discussed during the meeting, including:

In order to maintain school safety and encourage learning:

- Let peace reign in all schools, including the directors, teachers and students and avoid any conflict
- Prohibit all sharp material such as scissors, razors, etc. and impose expulsion of one week for violation
- Fights between peers require a one month suspension

With regard to discipline:

- The director must remain in their assigned location daily
- Attendance and punctuality, both for the directors, teachers, and for the students, is required

- Any dispute between students and teachers can lead to expulsion

For a quality of education and training it is recommended:

- Conduct training seminars
- Teachers must present the agenda for their classes at the beginning of the course
- Objective assessment of students
- Cleanliness and order in schools
- All students must wear uniforms
- Prohibit all vices and unhealthy behaviors such as counterfeiting grades, sexual harassment, alcoholism, smoking, prostitution among students, etc

At the conclusion of the meeting, Minister Ntutumu Nguema addressed the topic of "School fees" and reminded those present that tuition is free in both the primary and high school levels. He also reminded those present that parents can voluntarily contribute to the Association of Parents and Students at a cost of 1000 francs CFAs for primary school and 2000 francs CFAS for high school.

Education is one of the priorities outlined in Equatorial Guinea's "Horizon 2020" development plan, which was set in motion by President Obiang to move the country toward a sustainable and emergent economy. The plan includes the construction of new schools and teacher training.

About Equatorial Guinea

The Republic of Equatorial Guinea (República de Guinea Ecuatorial) is the only Spanish-speaking country in Africa, and one of the smallest nations on the continent. In the late-1990s, American companies helped discover the country's oil and natural gas resources, which only within the last five years began contributing to the global energy supply. Equatorial Guinea is now working to serve as a pillar of stability and security in its region of West Central Africa. The country will host the 2011 Summit of the African Union. For more information, visit <http://www.guineaequatorialpress.com>.

###

This has been distributed by Qorvis Communications, LLC on behalf of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea. More information on this relationship is on file at the United States Department of Justice, Washington, DC.

For Immediate Release

Media contact: David Mayorga, +1 703-489-4089

EQUATORIAL GUINEA FOCUSES ON IMPROVEMENTS IN EDUCATION

Ministry Puts New Measures in Place as 2010-2011 School Year Begins

MALABO (September 16, 2010) – In the nation's effort to build a better society through improving the education of its people, Equatorial Guinea's (República de Guinea Ecuatorial) Minister of Education unveiled a new set of standards and requirements for educators for the coming year.

The Minister of Education, Science and Sport, Filiberto Ntutumu Nguema met with principals, teachers and education professionals from schools in Malabo to present the new work plan.

Minister Ntutumu Nguema was joined by Deputy Minister of Education, Secundino Nvono Avomo, Secretary General of the Ministry, Miguel Esono Masogo, and the Counselor to the President for Education, Ondo Esono Asangono Anselmo, gathered with the directors general of the Ministry of Education, district directors and inspectors, principals, teachers and other professionals in the education sector. The purpose of the meeting was to guide the education sector staff on the new system of work and requirements.

During the meeting, Minister Ntutumu Nguema stressed the importance of education in society. "Thinking about general education," one of the highlighted themes, focused on education as the main road to success and teaching as the best vocation one can have. Minister Ntutumu Nguema cited several factors that affect the quality of education, including: teachers and professors, educational infrastructure, educational tools and adequate school buildings.

The next theme cited, "Planning, educational management and legal tools to regulate the functioning of education" focused on new directives for the schools and encouraged the schools to focus on planning and programming. The application of new rules for the 2010-2011 school year were discussed during the meeting, including:

In order to maintain school safety and encourage learning:

- Let peace reign in all schools, including the directors, teachers and students and avoid any conflict
- Prohibit all sharp material such as scissors, razors, etc. and impose expulsion of one week for violation
- Fights between peers require a one month suspension

With regard to discipline:

- The director must remain in their assigned location daily
- Attendance and punctuality, both for the directors, teachers, and for the students, is required

2010 SEP 17 AM 10:38

- Any dispute between students and teachers can lead to expulsion

For a quality of education and training it is recommended:

- Conduct training seminars
- Teachers must present the agenda for their classes at the beginning of the course
- Objective assessment of students
- Cleanliness and order in schools
- All students must wear uniforms
- Prohibit all vices and unhealthy behaviors such as counterfeiting grades, sexual harassment, alcoholism, smoking, prostitution among students, etc

At the conclusion of the meeting, Minister Ntutumu Nguema addressed the topic of "School fees" and reminded those present that tuition is free in both the primary and high school levels. He also reminded those present that parents can voluntarily contribute to the Association of Parents and Students at a cost of 1000 francs CFAs for primary school and 2000 francs CFAS for high school.

Education is one of the priorities outlined in Equatorial Guinea's "Horizon 2020" development plan, which was set in motion by President Obiang to move the country toward a sustainable and emergent economy. The plan includes the construction of new schools and teacher training.

About Equatorial Guinea

The Republic of Equatorial Guinea (República de Guinea Ecuatorial) is the only Spanish-speaking country in Africa, and one of the smallest nations on the continent. In the late-1990s, American companies helped discover the country's oil and natural gas resources, which only within the last five years began contributing to the global energy supply. Equatorial Guinea is now working to serve as a pillar of stability and security in its region of West Central Africa. The country will host the 2011 Summit of the African Union. For more information, visit <http://www.guineaequatorialpress.com>.

###

This has been distributed by Qorvis Communications, LLC on behalf of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea. More information on this relationship is on file at the United States Department of Justice, Washington, DC.

For Immediate Release

Media contact: David Mayorga, +1 703 489-4089

EQUATORIAL GUINEA SEEKS FOREIGN INVESTMENT IN AGRICULTURE
Ghana Agrees to Provide Assistance to Develop Cocoa Production

MALABO (September 14, 2010) – Equatorial Guinea's (República de Guinea Ecuatorial) President Obiang Nguema Mbasogo concluded his visit to the Republic of Ghana where he met with President John Evans Atta Mills to discuss cooperation and assistance to develop the Equatorial Guinea's agricultural sector. This visit follows President Obiang's recent trip to China and Korea where he signed cooperation agreements and courted business leaders about investment opportunities in his country.

(To see video of President Obiang on his visit to Asia and foreign investment, go to:
http://www.youtube.com/equatorialguineanews#p/a/u/0/K_loxdRI33hQ)

During his visit to Ghana, President Obiang reinforced the country's message of peace, solidarity and teamwork "in order for our two states to achieve development goals." Both states share common interests in the Gulf of Guinea and the reciprocal exchange of goods and materials. President Obiang referred to the need for both countries to work together to maintain peace and security in the world.

The two delegations signed a joint statement that sets out several agreements in various sectors such as agriculture, education, promotion of women, fisheries, transport and hydrocarbons.

President Obiang also recalled that Ghana and Equatorial Guinea are two countries linked from colonial times to the point that the seeds of cacao – the product that is now one of the main resources of Ghana – were brought from Equatorial Guinea. President Obiang visited places of interest in Accra, such as the Institute for Research and Transformation of Cocoa and Coffee.

As part of the effort to promote development of and investment in the agricultural sector, Minister of State for Agriculture and Forestry, Teodoro Nguema Obiang Mangue recently gave instructions to create efficiencies throughout all departments of the country's Ministry of Agriculture and Forestry.

Before departing Ghana, President Obiang visited the embassy of Equatorial Guinea, where he held a meeting with Equatorial Guinean students studying in different colleges and universities in Ghana. During the visit, a representative of the group of students voiced their concerns and challenges they are experiencing. President Obiang advised them to "avoid bad habits that can alter your path and destroy your mind. You must be useful in helping to defend the country and be helpful for the future." President Obiang offered the group of students a sum of €50,000 to help cover their needs during their stay in Ghana.

20 SEP 17 AM 10:52

About Equatorial Guinea

The Republic of Equatorial Guinea (República de Guinea Ecuatorial) is the only Spanish-speaking country in Africa, and one of the smallest nations on the continent. In the late-1990s, American companies helped discover the country's oil and natural gas resources, which only within the last five years began contributing to the global energy supply. Equatorial Guinea is now working to serve as a pillar of stability and security in its region of West Central Africa. The country will host the 2011 Summit of the African Union. For more information, visit <http://www.guineaequatorialpress.com>.

###

This has been distributed by Qorvis Communications, LLC on behalf of the Republic of Equatorial Guinea. More information on this relationship is on file at the United States Department of Justice, Washington, DC.